About This Game

I'm sure you remember this game. It was the first soccer game that made you smell the grass and feel on your leg after every foul. You were playing from virtually any perspective with smooth and fast camera action that got you in the game. Its interactive technology didn't look better, but it played better. You do remember, don't you?

Choose from 44 international teams and select the position you want to play. Try head to head or alternating play modes for one or two players and even more multiplayer fun?

Feel the soccer once again.

A faithful adaptation of an excellent tactical tabletop game!. Very, VERY early access. I have a good computer, and I cannot get visuals anywhere as nice the screenshots in the Steam Store. Looks like an arcade game for me. I cannot get joystick/throttle/pedals to work with this game, and controls anyway are very, very coarse and arcade like. In my opinion it is not really playable.

I owned Flight Unlimited 2, and I thought it was a really fun little simulator. Could only fly San Fransisco area, but it was detailed and the missions were entertaining. I thought Flight Unlimited 2K18 must be a big improvement to that, given the time that has passed, but it is not. I feel like I got sucked in by the branding and screenshots Steam Store. It clearly is tagged early access. Despite that, if you are considering it, don't expect to necessarily see anything like the advertising when you play it. Buy it if you have faith it will become a real game and/or you want to help out the developers. Otherwise I would recommend waiting.. As your body is crushed under a boulder your last thoughts are "well i guess i have time for one more game". It's an original game for sure, but it's not very fun. Too repetitive, and non-stop action. So You only do one thing, it's shooting robots. . dont buy it. Great game enjoying it! well worth it!

I tried to enjoy this but being punished for playing well is annoying as all hell. I love the concept but just can't make myself play again and again knowing that winning a part of the game will seriously hurt my chances at the whole thing. Low damage and overly long fights are pretty dull come late game as well.. LOOK AT THAT ♥♥♥♥ING COVER ART

TOO BAD THE GAME DOESN'T ACTUALLY LOOK AS AWESOME. Amazingly fun and satisfying game, at a bargain price. Though with all that clicking, you might need to buy another mouse too!. This is a perfect example of a game that was not properly playtested. Of course there are plenty of junk games on Steam that have that problem, but Invicta Beam is not a junk game - there was clearly a lot of effort made by the developer here, as seen in the nice visuals and overall level of polish.

But it's a giant pain to play. For a quick demonstration of why, watch this brief clip (not my video) from the final room of the very first non-tutorial level of the game (skip to 7:41 if your browser doesn't do it for you):

<https://youtu.be/VufMeBSnELJA?t=461>

Note that the player in that video enters the room with 3 lives at full health and finishes with 1 life remaining (the health bar is in the upper-left corner). Did you spot the moments where they take damage? In this game your health just seems to suddenly drop with no audio or visual indication of what is happening, other than a little "beep" when you lose a life. This lack of feedback is the #1 problem.

So how are they being damaged? The first bit of health gets taken off from the green turrets that pop up early. It looks like the turrets are just sitting there doing nothing, but they are actually firing from a little machine gun near the top. The bullets are invisible and seemingly impossible to avoid.

The next chunk of damage comes from the rockets being fired by the blue turrets towards the end of the clip. They are definitely making contact since the health bar is dropping, but on-screen the rockets look like they are either passing right through the player, circling around them, or flying into the walls, again with no feedback for any of it.

Another problem shown in that clip - The player has a secondary rocket launcher weapon that they fire numerous times. Half the time the rocket reaches the target, while the rest of the time the rockets immediately blow up in their face. Why does that happen? I have no idea. It was constantly happening to me also, which makes the rocket launcher useless (the other secondary weapon is a shield, which also suffers a lack of feedback on whether it is working or not).

This is all just in the first level. I only made it to the end of the second level, after dying about 20 times in just 30 minutes of playing, before giving up. The problems got much worse in a very short amount of time.

I think it's great that the developer provided a demo, but you probably won't need it - You will know well before the 2 hour mark whether or not you will enjoy the rest of the game. I requested a refund, but I will keep following it to see if any additional gameplay updates are made.. Very boring point and click puzzle game.. NONE of the puzzles were difficult and I walked through the entire game in less than 30mins first play through.. Rest of the time was idle collecting cards.... This is a great game, and I know someone who helped make it, I recommend it strongly.
